Why focus on children?

Not everyone is benefiting from Vietnam’s rapid economic development. Inequality is a real issue. Thousands of families and children are migrating to Ho Chi Minh City, fleeing poverty and looking for better opportunities. But life in the city brings new challenges, and urban unemployment, family break-ups, and crime rates are on the rise. All this leads to an increased number of abandoned, neglected, abused and exploited children as well as youth crimes.

In 2010, the Ministry of Labor, Invalids and Social Affairs (MOLISA) reported that more than 4.3 million children were living in “special circumstances,” which is nearly 18 per cent of all Vietnamese boys and girls. It includes 1,353,458 children with disabilities, nearly 300,000 children affected by HIV and AIDS with 5,704 children living with HIV, 126,248 abandoned children and orphans without care of their biological parents, 28,910 children working in hazardous conditions, more than 21,230 street children, 1,805 abused children and 21,500 children living in institutions. According to the Ministry of Public Security, in 2011 there were 13,600 juveniles in conflict with the law. Thousands of children are deprived of basic care, working difficult jobs or living on the streets and many go completely unaccounted for in the official monitoring systems. For many of these disadvantaged children the only place where the can receive health care, education, food, shelter, counseling and other support are local not-for-profit organizations.

How does the Narrow the Gap Fund work?

LIN’s Narrow the Gap Fund supports local not-for-profit organizations (NPOs) tackling the most pressing problems in HCMC. This summer, 100% of the Fund will go to organizations working with vulnerable children. The Fund works in a simple way.

STEP 1: We collect donations from any individual or company in HCMC willing to help. We aim to raise $15,000 in July and August.

STEP 2: We invite the not-for-profit organizations to submit their project ideas to us. A board of experts selects 5 best project ideas (July)

STEP 3: You and other city residents vote online to choose 3 best projects (August)

STEP 4: You and other city residents come together at a fun event, meet the organizations running the 3 best projects and determine how the Fund will be distributed among them.

After the event, LIN transfers the Fund to the organizations, Then, LIN sends you 6-month and 1-year progress reports on the projects.

What can you do?

Donate as an individual or as a company

Follow the Fund in July and August on Facebook and on our blog and tell your friends about us!

Vote online to choose 3 best projects (August 17 – 31, details coming soon)

Join the Narrow the Gap Event on 14/09 to meet the people behind the 3 best projects (details coming soon).
Ms. Gail Nordheim, an international consultant and strategic partner to LIN, led two full day workshops based on self-assessment tools for three key management areas: Strategic Planning, Action Planning and Program Evaluation. These workshops are part of an on-going series of workshops from the Capacity Building System for NPOs (CBS), a comprehensive approach to supporting capacity development of local NPOs funded by Irish Aid.

Forty participants from 21 NPOs gathered on 14 June 2013 for a full day workshop based upon the self-assessment tools on “Strategic Planning and Action Planning” for local NPOs. Ms. Gail led the workshop using participatory methods for training and learning. This approach allowed NPOs to grasp what is planning in the context of their organizations and why strategic planning processes are important to the development and sustainability of local NPOs. Ms. Gail connected local NPO examples from volunteer participants District 8 Shelter, Tinh Than, Mai Am Thien An (MATA), Huynh Tan Phat Scholarship Fund and Not Lang Charity Group to make relevant connections to the participating NPOs. LIN and SDTC staff also attended along with one of SDTC’s trainers and local expert in Planning, Dr. Le Dai Tri, who supported the local NPOs in localizing context of planning and helping in small group discussions.

On 21 June 2013, 31 staff from 20 local NPOs, along with staff from LIN and SDTC and Dr. Le Dai Tri participated in the “Action Planning and Program Evaluation” Workshop which continued content from the previous workshop and also introduced the Program Evaluation self-assessment tool. After reviewing content from the previous workshop on Strategic Planning, Ms. Gail introduced Action Planning and explained how to approach it as a road map which will help NPOs to identify as well as detail steps to implement activities more efficiently.

Following the planning content, participants learned the essentials of Program Evaluation for their NPOs through the introduction of the Program Evaluation self-assessment tool as a guide. Ms. Gail continually referenced the tool throughout the workshop while also integrating each new concept with the same example NPOs used in the previous workshop. These same examples were the basis of small group exercises and discussions to help local NPOs see relevance of each component of Program Evaluation. Participants learned simple approaches to Program Evaluation and how to efficiently collect data without getting overwhelmed by data that doesn’t answer how to improve your program.

Participants then learned about the comparison of outcomes/impact evaluation and process evaluation. Program Evaluation, particularly evaluating impact or outcomes from activities, is still quite new to many participating NPOs. One participant mentioned NPOs can be reluctant to do program evaluations as they expressed that building the trust of the children through program activities was more important. Ms. Gail shared her knowledge with the participating NPOs and likewise participants were willing to share their own Action Planning/ Program Evaluation challenges amongst the other NPOs. This interactive workshop allowed participants to work together in groups to have a better understanding of how to implement basic planning and evaluation activities to strengthen their organizations.

“During the workshop, I enjoyed learning the concept of program evaluation. We do everything else right but we’re not so good at implementing good program evaluations. In fact, the program evaluation can help assess the results of our work, but over the years I have not really considered it. After the evaluation, I know understand the improvements needed to improve our objectives and make us a better NPO. After this workshop, I will implement better program evaluations.” - Ms. Vo Thi Hoang Van, Not Lang Charity Group.
EXPERT WORKSHOPS: TRAINING THE TRAINERS (TOT)

As part of the Irish Aid funded project VNPO Capacity Building System, Ms. Gail Nordheim also conducted two Training of Trainers (ToT) workshops on Leading Capacity Building Workshops and One-on-One Consultations. LIN connected with many local area experts or potential trainers with the aim of garnering their volunteer support for the Irish Aid funded project to support local NPOs in key management areas. The aim of these trainings was to introduce key techniques in working with/training/strengthening capacity of local organizations. These participants have agreed to become volunteer experts/trainers to help support local NPOs in the Irish Aid funded project.

On 12 June 2013, 17 local area experts and/or potential trainers from organizations such as SDTC, SDRC, EFD, DRD, and independent consultants participated in the Leading Capacity Building Workshops training. Ms. Gail demonstrated certain techniques used in effective workshops such as learning about participants’ needs at beginning of workshops, how to bring topics to life for participants through certain participatory methods (i.e. role play, demonstrating, using real life examples, small group discussions to work on exercises, sharing experiences, etc.), tips on teaching adults and recognizing how they learn is essential and things to avoid as facilitator.

The participants were quite willing to share their own experiences particularly around how to handle common challenges during a workshop. Many participants gave their own examples of past challenges but also provided some practical solutions in the context of Vietnam. For instance, if a workshop had both the supervisor and staff attending and the staff member wanted to express an opinion but did not want to challenge their supervisor, one effective method would be to allow participants to write down ideas on notepaper and anonymously pass it to the facilitator to be read out loud for discussion.

The following workshop was held on 19 June 2013, with 12 participants attending, to introduce key techniques in conducting one-on-one consultations with local NPOs. This intimate training allowed the participants to dive deeper into how to actually conduct one-on-one advise or consulting sessions with local NPOs. Ms. Gail used real life examples and scenarios to demonstrate what real challenges local NPOs face. These situations came directly from LIN’s program activities in recent months with Irish Aid project participants (i.e. through Meet the Expert sessions, etc.).

The participants learned that the key to any consultation is listening carefully to the needs, challenges and ideas of the local NPOs. In order to fully understand what is going on and how to support these organizations during a “micro-consultation” which could last between 30 minutes to 2 hours, a consultation would need to ask specific questions relevant to the NPOs to get at the necessary information to then work with the NPO to come up with a realistic approach or solution to the challenge. The techniques covered in this training emphasized customized solutions to help the client organization rather than just “one-size-fits all” approach to consulting. As local NPOs have different needs, different programs and are in different stages of organizational life, the most helpful approach is to work along with the NPO rather than just give them a solution oriented to a large organization or international NGO. This is key to helping to establish trust from the NPO.

Participants from these ToT sessions went away with better understanding of the context of local NPOs under the Irish Aid project and how LIN and partners are working towards strengthening these organizations and the sector through connecting with volunteer experts, tools and other means of providing comprehensive support to local NPOs. LIN will continue to call on these local area experts and build the network further during this two year project.

CPI update: Top companies compete for a cause

The LIN Community Partnership Initiative (CPI) kick started on 27 June when participating teams got to know each other during the Meet and Greet Event. Representatives from 8 leading Advertising and Communications agencies and 3 teams of communications professionals were present, along with 11 NPOs supporting vulnerable children in HCMC.

The focus of this event was to introduce the teams to each other for the first time, to result in effective partnerships between companies and NPOs. To help raise awareness for vulnerable children in HCMC, CPI aims to match communication professionals with NPOs, and thus requires a match between companies and NPOs that is beneficiary and effective for both parties. LIN facilitated this matching process by identifying companies’ strengths and preferences and NPOs communications needs, and divided them into two groups.

The event started with a brief introduction by a representative from LIN, after which the teams met up and each company talked face-to-face with up to six NPO partners and vice-a-versa. 5 minute time slots were allocated for NPOs and companies to talk with one another, allowing them just enough time to form a first impression of who they may like to have as a partner.

After the speed networking, companies and NPOs had more time to talk to their favorite potential partners before ranking their choice, which LIN then used for matching the companies and NPOs appropriately and according to each teams’ wishes as much as possible.

Based on this, LIN announced the following teams who will be working together to create communication tools throughout a period of 6 weeks. The teams will be competing against each other for attractive communication prizes for the NPO and media publicity.

Sajju Ambat from Lowe Vietnam appreciated the concept of CPI and called it a serious partnership between a company and a non profit organization. “I hope that with focus and determination from both parties, we could realize our project,” the Strategic Planner of Lowe, one of the top advertising agencies in Vietnam, said. Lowe Vietnam was matched with Smile Group, an NPO focusing on children affected with HIV/AIDS.

Thien An Shelter (MATA), an NPO participating in CPI, had high hope for their partnership with Green Hat, a Vietnamese marketing communication agency. “I believe that Green Hat will bridge the gap in MATA’s communication activities, which was due to our lack of staff and resources.”

Tuong Lai (Future) Project, another NPO who was matched with Daybreak Digital, already aimed for the first prize. “Being matched with a leading company in digital marketing is such a great start. We do hope that we will be the winner of this competition,” said Nguyen Quoc Chinh, a member of Tuong Lai project.

In the next six weeks of mentorship (from 1 July to 15 August), companies will mentor the NPOs on communication skills and create a communication tool to raise the awareness about challenges that vulnerable children are facing and how the NPOs are helping them to solve these problems. Alongside these mentorships, the NPOs will participate in workshops, led pro bono by eBrand and Brand Maker, to improve their communication skills. They will also visit HSBC and Ogilvy to learn about how companies incorporate communications into their CSR activities.

Grantee Selection Process:

This Community Grant is designed to support NPOs that wish to expand their support networks. As such, we are introducing a special format for the grant review process:

Step One: Grant applications will be reviewed by the LIN team for eligibility.

Step Two: A volunteer committee, comprised of LIN Board Members and Skilled Volunteers will review and rank applications according to project criteria and desired characteristics, including:

- Responsiveness: Proposals that respond to the needs and demands of children (based on persuasive quantitative and/or qualitative data).
- Sustainable/Scalable: Interventions that have the potential for replication and/or expansion, beyond the life of the grant.
- Long-Term Impact: Proposals introducing long-term solutions will be given priority over projects addressing short-term needs.

Up to five (5) projects will be selected by the committee to advance to the third phase.

Step Three: LIN will create a special webpage where visitors can vote for the project(s) they like best among the five (5), selected NPOs. The three (3) projects that receive the most number of votes will advance to the fourth, and final, phase.

NPOs will be asked to prepare their own, online project briefs. To support NPOs in this effort, LIN will introduce locally based communications professionals to provide feedback and/or suggestions for improvement.

Step Four: The top three (3) NPOs will have an opportunity to present their projects during a September community event, with over 300 residents who will be asked to vote for the project they like best. Each of the three NPOs will receive a grant; however, the size of that grant will be determined that day, based on the number of votes each project receives.

LIN will support each of the 3 NPOs to create short, video presentations about their projects. The three NPOs will also be given resources to prepare an informational booth and to lead a game for children during the event.

The deadline to submit an application is close of business on 31 July 2013. Although we prefer electronic submissions, mailed to: npo@LINvn.org, NPOs are allowed to mail or hand deliver their applications to the LIN Office:

How to convene a focus group

In the early stages of program development, it's natural to keep the brainstorming in-house. But as the program idea grows, flourishes, and begins to take on a life and a name, it may be time to bring in a focus group. Typically made up of 6-12 people with diverse backgrounds, a focus group can help you determine if there is a market for your new program and give you an understanding of what your target market is. Although most focus group discussions and interviews are informal, you should always have a series of important questions to ask that will help keep discussion flowing in the right direction.

Here are some tips on working with focus groups:

1. Use the focus group when you are testing out a new program, service, or product or when you want to evaluate the results. These are two times where a focus group could be valuable to your organization.

2. Make sure you plan ahead. This is a critical step in the process and will pay great dividends. Plan out who will be attending the group, what the key questions and content areas are, how the group discussion will flow, and what the appropriate setting will be.

3. Actively try to get the "right" mix of people in your focus group. Keep the group size to 6-12 people and screen these individuals to make sure they represent diverse viewpoints around the selected topic area.

4. Avoid interviewing friends who will form a clique. If you see that they are close friends when you begin the group, try to separate them out.

5. Questions should be open-ended, unstructured and used to draw people into a discussion. Make sure you limit the total number of questions to no more than a dozen.

6. If you have a quiet person in the group, take a break, pull them aside and either solicit their opinions or encourage them to speak up in the group.

7. Hire a skilled moderator who will convene the group, ask the questions and keep everyone focused. The moderator should be able to draw out the group and also be a great listener.

8. Have an objective observer sit with the group to monitor the group dynamics and keep notes on the reactions and responses of the group. (In settings where you have the luxury of a one-way mirror, have that person sit behind the mirror and observe the process.)

9. The focus group should last from 90-120 minutes. Keep the group on topic, and be very clear to begin and end on time.

10. Once the focus group is finished, have the moderator and observer get together and compose an analysis with recommendations within one week of the focus group session. You want to have a quick turn-around time to make sure the information is fresh and current.
